—North American. The recent cold snap caused the chickens of this country to close up shop and take a vacation. Their idleness sent the price of eggs skurrying skyward. In the country towns the price has hovered around the 25 cent mark, but in the cities it climbed up to 50 cents and at some places fresh eggs with good credentials sold for six and two-thirds cents apiece, while the cold storage article brought 2 cents a dozen, wholesale. ment to a large majority of the people of the United States. There are many peculiar passages in the president's paper. One of the most conspicuous is his treatment of the turning movement of Schley's flagship at a critical stage of the Santiago battle. Mr. Roosevelt is impressed with the idea that Admiral Schley ordered the "loop" to avoid dangerous proximity with the enemy. Therefore he remarks, in a toploftical way, "this kind of danger must not be not." too nicely weighed by those whose trade it is to dare greatly for the honor of the flag." Such a remark comes with poor grace from a man who was in the nursery, perhaps drilling his little toy soldiers, when Admiral Schley was on the high seas fighting heroically under the Stars and Stripes, to whose bright colors he has added so much lustre. Another remarkable feature of the decision is the fact that President Roosevelt accepts, without comment, the statements of the captains engaged in the battle of Santiago that they would not have taken orders from Admiral Schley. In his strenuous efforts to and made great lamentation over him. prove that the Marylander was not in command of the fleet he has gone to the extreme of showing that a spirit of insubordination prevails in the navy. "Fighting Bob" Evans audaciously asserted that he received no orders whatever from the Brooklyn and would not have heeded them if he had received them, inasmuch as he considered reminds us of the Savior's command, Admiral Sampson to be present and in command. Roosevelt seems to sanction the expressed views of all the captains of the squadron, with the exception of the modest and manly Clark, that they were of more consequence than the hattle-scarred Brooklyn. Why, forsooth should such sailors take orders from their senior in the service? Admiral Evans unwittingly removed the lid from a "pretty kettle of fish." The ocean peddler starts out from Hamburg or San Francisco, the chief home ports of the trade, with a definite object in view. Sailing from the for mer city the course is generally laid either to the coast of Africa or South America, having in the hold a varied assortment of goods likely to be marketable in the regious visited-cotton fabrics, trinkets, arms, ammunition; liquors and all spare room filled up with coal to the consignee.

The ocean peddling trade on the Pacific has been shorn of much of its profit since the Interisland passenger traffic in natives, who too often were carried as passengers, much against their will, to dive for pearls on the great Australian bank, has been effectually suppressed. Still a consider able trade is carried on in small ar ticles of hardware, old clothes, person al trinkets and an occasional case o "dry goods," which, if seized, would turn out to be remarkably wet .- New York Sun.

IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

They Are First Oriven Into End and Are then Stabbed and Stashed to Death With Spears

One of the most thriling and wonderful sights in the world is coat of the tunny fisheries of the Meaner aneith The pursuit of these given and swift fishes is not a table tame on all off of netting. It is a tight between and and sea creatures such as is diquicated nowhere except in the whate disheries. The tunny is a huge mackerel. He is a predaceous fish, and his course through the seas is that of a destroyer without parallel. So deadly is the tunny to the schools of herring and similar food fishes that he is called the herring hog. In our waters be is known more generally as the horse mac, ercl.

The tunny tisheries are distinctly European, and they are the oldest industry that is known in the Medacrianean sea. To capture them men must band themselves together in large bodies. for fishermen singly could do nothing with these fishes, which grow to a length of ten feet and weigh over buil a ton sometimes. Therefore there is a system of co-operation on the consts that are visited by the tunny, a system which dates back to the Phoenicians, who were great tunny catchers in their

The perfection of this system is due, among other things, to the fact that the big fishes have absolutely regular habits. In normal times they can be relied on to make their appearance at certain periods almost to the manue. When they come, it is in tinge schools that can be seen alar, for they scour the waters like ships of war, and the leapings of their prey and the leapings of their own bulky bodies beat the deep into whate foam and lather.

Since they are so exact in their habits, the fishermen prepare for them always before they arrive. At some des ignated spot are spread enormous acts, exceedingly deep and made of the strongest of line. These are not designed to catch the tunnies. They are spread out merely to force the fishes to edge in and in until they are led to the real prison net, which is a vasi contrivance set in an immense square and powerful enough to dety anything that As soon as the last of the school has entered this boxlike inclosure the sides of the great net are raised at a signal. At first the imprisoned fishes do not show any signs of alarm, but as the net rises, inch by inch, from the water depths gleaming, swordlike backs uppear here and there above the surface. darting with incredible swiftness from side to side of the net. Each instant more of these living blades appear above the surface.

Then the fishes begin to leap. Here one launches himself straight out of the water-560 pounds of glorious life-to ward the sky, to crash back into the sea with a faillike blow of sides and rail that makes the ocean coho. Auother and another rises and falls back. Soon the scene is as if the abysses of the sea were spouting their inhabitants, for hundreds of immense silver flashing fishes rise everywhere at once within the net.

But now a new element enters Long, parrow fishing bouts push into the inclosure. In them stand brown men with lances and spears and big Mrs. McKinley.-Boston Journal. knives lashed to poles. Then begins a fight that is terrible to see. The men thrust madly into the struggling mass-es of fishes. The fishes leap and roll and dive and leap again, hammening the screws of steamships and whiten the ocean is red. Out of the smoking dabbled with blood till they look scarcely human.

Now and then a man slips and falls among the harried fishes. Then there are loud screams from his companions and cries of supplication from him as he calls to his patron saint, for it is no toke to fall among those mighty bodies that are dashing around in their death

So the fight continues till in that inclosed space of sea there is not a fish alive. Every boat is half full of water and loaded down with living silver. where the slim, piratical bodies of the beautiful fishes lie. The inhabitants of the towns near the scene of this fishing make a fete day of the arrival of the tunny, for it means food and employment for many hundreds of men, won en and children. The fish is a favorite article of food, especially when salted and the roe is a great delicacy, which brings fancy prices. The tunnles that are caught off the Italian coasts have to be passed through the custom house when they are landed. like any other merchandise, and the streets there present a strange appearance then, for on all sides are wheelbarrows full of the shapely, monstrous creatures.-New

Red Paint In New England. As one drives through the country towns all over Maine one can hardly fail to notice the frequent old red barn and oftentimes a whole set of form buildings painted this conspicuous color. Query was made as to the teason therefor. It seems red paint is cheapest, far cheaper than white lead paint, and so far as serviceableness goes lasts as long and sheds the rain as well. Long may the little red farmhouse brighten our New England landscapes

A Bandit's Victim Tells How it Feels to Be field Up.
"I happen to know Low it feels to be held up," said a gratheman who now occupies a position of promanence in lo cal railroad circles. "I ac jured my experience as a passenger in a stagecoach about six miles from Tombstone. A. T., in 1884. We had a log toad, slx men inside, two on the driver's seat and an express messenger on the boot. Every man in the crowd had a revolver, two of the Insule passengers had Winchesters across their knees, and the messenger had an 8 bore duck gan that contained nearly a quart of slugs. We were held up at about 4 in the afternoon by a single mess ed man, who cose suddenly from behand a pile of socks and covered us with a 'sawed' off' shatgun. All the curtains were raised, so there was a fair view of the interior, and when he yelled 'Hands up!" everybody obeyed. Then he told us to get out one by one and stand in a row, with our backs to him. I never hated to do anything so badly in my life, but I saw the others going and followed suit. About that time a balf grown boy, apparently unarmed, appeared from beling the rocks and took up the collection, which included our joint arsenal. After that were ordered back, and the chief bandlt told the driver to go ahead. "As far as I know, the robbers were never caught, but what especially haessed me about the episode was the reluctance of any of our party to take the initiative. I was certain the slightest resistance would be successful, but realized also that the man who made the first move had an excellent chance of being killed, and I suppose all the others felt the same way. Anyhow, it appened exactly as I have narrated it. During the year I Hved in Arizona there were eight or nine hold ups on the same road, and in no instance was there any resistance whatever. That taught me that a crowd of average men, gazing into a cocked shotgun, will do just about anything that is suggested."-New Orleans Times-Dem-

They Are Dreaded by Guests and Make the Bostess Nervous.
Writing on "Making Company of Guests," Edward Bak, in The Ladies' Home Journal, considers "it a curious fact that American housewives are so loath to believe that a danner with fus and feathers is dreaded by the vast majority of people. The highest compliment we can possibly show a guest at dinner is to let him partake of an ordinary meal, to let him come quietly in and 'be one of the family,' yet the is the very compliment which we withhold from him. Instead of giving a guest what he would relish most we give him what he really enjoys least.

"Let a hostess be ever so graceful and tactful, let there be years of experlence on her shoulders, yet nothing can conceal from her guests that the dinner which she is serving is other than an unusual one. It is a formal affair, and no amount of grace can make anything else of it, for nothing speaks so loudly or so unerringly as a formal company dinner. Every course shows t; every movement of the waitress proclaims it; every piece of china fairly eries out the occasion.

"And of course no one at the table really enjoys it. The guest certainly does not, because he knows he is being made company of, and that feeling is always enough to offset every enjoyhasn't the time. Her eyes are for the table and her servants, not for her R. Irvine & Co's guest."

THE LEADING ARTICLE.

Advent and Development of the Editorial In Newspapers. "I know what 'leaders' are, for I have written them," said Benjamin Disraeli in the course of a speech in the house of commons, and, though all of us may not have written "leaders" for The Morning Post and other newspapers. like Disraeli, we all at least know the meaning of the term "leaders."

For more than 100 years after the publication of the first daily newspaper The Daily Courant, which consist ed of a small sheet printed on one side only and made its appearance in London in March, 1702, the "dailies" confined themselves to what is perhaps the proper husiness of a newspaper, the publication of the largest possible

At the opening of the nineteenth century "the leading article" first appeared in the morning papers. It was orig inally called the "loaded article," be cause of the "leads" or spaces intro duced between the lines to spread out the article and give it an imposing uppearance in order that it might at once attract the eye of even the most casua reader. After a time it was called "leading article" or "leader" or "editorbil." names by which it is now universally known in newspaper offices. At the beginning "leaders" were pub lished only tentatively. Their publication was irregular. In torm they were brief-we should call them "editorial paragraphs" now-and they were principally used to direct special attention o some important event recorded in the news columns. But 75 years ago they became a settled and regular feature of the daily newspaper and a poten agency for promoting opinions, political, religious and social.-Cornhill Mag azine.

BUTTER AS A MEDICINE.

it is Good For Consumptives and For Thin, Weak People, Butter is so common a commodity that people use it and scarcely ever think what wonderful value lies at l their hand in the puts of dainty ye low cream fat. Of course they know that it is useful in many branches of cookery and that without its aid the table would be bare of its thinly rolled bread and butter, its delicate cakelets and its other usual accessories. Beyond these uses the value of butter is a thing only vaguely thought of. But this delicate fat is as valuable as the dearer cod liver oil for weakly, thin people, and doctors have frequently recommended the cating of many thin slices of bread thickly spread with butter as a means of pleasantly taking into the bodily tissues one of the purest forms of fat it is possible to get. Butter is a carbon, and all excess of it is stored up as fat in the body. gives energy and power to work to those who eat heartily of it. So it is not economy at table to spare the butter, even to the healthy folk. For any one afflicted with consumption butter cookery, if plenty of fat can be cigest ed, is one of the best ways of enring the disease if it is in its early stages or of keeping it at bay if advanced. Butter is not a simple fat, compos of merely one sort. It is a mixture of no less than seven different sorts of fats, and no more complex oil can be taken than this is. Lynch Law. Lynch law in its usual meaning is said to be traceable to a Galway wor thy, In 1493 one James FitzStepher Lynch, a mayor of that city, sentenced his own son to death for murder and, fearing a rescue, had the culprit brought home and hanged before his own door. The tradition may be found alluded to in Thackeray's "Irish Sketch Book." There are critics, however who say that the law was in its origin essentially American, and they date i back to Charles Lynch, a Virginlan planter of the seventeenth century. But He Wenkened. "My dear," said the poet sternly, "I've just sold a love song, but"-

"But what?" "Oh, nothing. I was just about to say that I wouldn't buy bacon or greens or self raising flour with the noney, but—you know best."—Atlant: Constitution. His Glass Eye.

COLORADO'S FIRST GOLD.

How the Discovery of the Precious On May S, 1859, as stated in Fossett's 'Colorado' (1876), John rospector, climbed the hill into what is still known as Gregory gulch (midway between the present Central City and Black Hawk), scraped away the grass and leaves, filled his pan with dirt and took it down to the stream. Upon nanning (washing) it down there was about $4 worth of gold in it. This was followed by a stampede to the Gregory diggings, as they wer afterward called. Gregory employed five men from the new arrivals and by means of a sluice took out $972 in one week. Other rich strikes were made almost daily, and large amounts of gold were taken out in a short time The Bates, Bobtail, Mammoth, Gunnell, Gurroughs, Illinois and hundreds of other lodes were found, and thousands of claims were taken up. As the summer of 1859 advanced the wealth of the cold veins and guiches of what is now Gilpin county became more and more apparent. Over 15,000 men were congregated in Gregory, Russell and tributary gulches, and many of them were accumulating wealth rapidly, but NEVER ATE FOREIGN MEAT. It Doesn't Pay to He Toe Sura Until One Knows All the Facts. A certain Major Brownjones, who ide it his boast that he never allowed American or colonial meat to be served at his table, recently visited an old comrade in Liverpool. One night at dinner a most delicious saddle of (apparently) Welsh mutton appeared, to which the major did ample justice.

"Ah," he observed, "I wish that my butcher in London would send me stuff like that, and yet he deals only in the best British meat." "Well," said his friend, "as a matter of fact you have been eating New Zealand mutton. But it's only fair to say that I get it from a friend who is a large wholesale importer."

"By Jove, you don't say so!" exclaimed the guest. "I wish he'd tell me where I can get the like in town."
"We'll go and see him tomorrow," said the bost. The visit was duly paid to the meat mouger, who smiled when he heard the Londoner's eulogy and explanation.
"Tell me," he returned after listening to the epicure's remarks, "in what part of London you reside, and I dare say I can give you the address of a retail butcher who will supply you with exactly the same sort of mutton as that which you like so much." The major handed him his card. "Ah," observed the importer, "there's the very man within two streets of your house. We supply him with all his ment. Here's his address," he added, banding a slip of paper to the seek

r after succulent joints. The major read, the major started, the major frowned, the major, truth to say, cried vengeance, and no wonder, for the address was that of his own butcher, who dealt only in home prod uce.-London Sketch.

The Bottle at Ship Lanuches Down to Charles II's time it was cus tomary to name and haptize a ship aft er she was launched, sometimes a weel or two after. The old Tudor method used for men-of-war was still in use Pepys' "Diary" shows that. The ship was safely got affoat, after which some high personage went on board with a special silver "standing cup," or "flaggon" of wine, out of which he drank, naming the ship and pouring a libation on the quarter deck. The cup was then generally given to the dockward shipvright as a memento. When did the present usage of naming and baptizing a ship before she is sent affont come in? I trace the last explicit mention of the old method to 1664, when the Royal Katherine was launched (see Pepys). The first men-tion of smashing a bottle of wine on the bows of an English man-of-war that I have found is in a contemporary newspaper cutting of May, 1780, describing the christening of H. M. S Magnanime at Deptford, but nothing is binted that it was then a new custom -Notes and Queries.

To Fly In Your Dreams, There is a peculiarity about the flying dream that seems to be constant. Of all those whom I asked about the mat ter and who are conscious of the flying dream at all not one has ever known himself to make any high flights in his dreams. One always flies low, with a skimming manner, slightly, but only slightly, above the heads of pedestrians. And one's critical attitude in a dream toward one's own performance is always interesting to note, both in regard to this particular class of dream and even more toward one of the other classes. It is an attlinde that is well brought out in "Alice In Wonderland," where Alice is made to exclaim or to think while she is falling, "How brave they will all think it of me at home not to mind a great full like this!"-Longman's.

Washington's Birthday Dinner On Saturday, although the sun was covered with clouds and it was snowing covered with clouds and it was snowing fast in the morning, nevertheless about twenty-five people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Reliey, in Schellsburg, and spent the cay very pleasantly with them. After the guests were once inside of the door they soon forgot the inclement weather without. The flowers were blooming and there were cheer and good will all around. After enjoying themselves in a social way dinner was atnounced and all enjoyed a sumptuous ferst. After t is followed pleasant conversations at them the guests took their leave, hoping that all may live to enj v many more such days in Bought an Entire Town.

He expects the insect to make its appearance about July or August. These insects are especially destructive to young fruit trees and tender branches of larger trees.

FEBBUARY 25 .- Miss Clara Long, Miss Rose Rice and Arthur Kagarise, of Altoona, were in town over Sunday. Mrs. Barbara Williams, Joseph and Dr. Charles Long, of Altoona, attended the funeral of their brother, Elder David C. Long, of this place. On Friday news reached our little town that John F. Lyons, formerly a resident of this place, died in Altoons, where he resided for the past few years. His remains were brought to his home at this place on Saturday. day morning. Mr. Lyons was a well known and respected citizen. He was a painter by trade. For five years he was constable of South Woodbury township and was one of our champion baseball players when baseball was at its zenith. No man ever approached met you with a smile and had some Lord abundantly bless each one of the thing pleasing to tell you. He was in his thirty-ninth year. A wife, six sisters and four brothers survive him.

The farmers' institute held at this place on Monday and Monday evening was a grand success. This was the first thing of the kind held here for many years. Among some of the speakers from a distance were Dr. Will

FOR MEN AND BOYS.

We are now commencing to receive Spring Merchandise.

Dress Overshirts.

The patterns differ from last year's styles; they are more lively in color and in taste-the make are more lively in color and in taste—the make is the same as last year all but the pleats, and they are really quite different. We now place on sale a big lot of them and display them in our second corner window. Just look and see them. The price is
